Famed Negro Stars In Ebbets Field Bill

Mrs. Effa Manley, business manager of the Newark Eagles, would like to see Negro ball players in the big leagues. The Eagles tangle with the Hempstead Grays in a doubleheader at Ebbets Field tomorrow.

"It would boom baseball among my people," explains one of the few women executives in the game. "More and more young colored boys would take up baseball as a profession as a result. Babe Ruth was a hero among American boys everywhere. So with the colored boys. They would want to become another Josh Gibson, Willie Welles, Sammy Bankhead or a Leon Day.

"If there were enough Negro teams in the country," concluded Mrs. Manley, "it would solve several of the problems we fear at the present time. Some one has made the suggestion—and it sounds like a good one—that an all-colored team be organized and play in the big league as a unit."

All four players she named will be seen in action at the park of the Dodgers tomorrow and have been promised a tryout by the Pirates.
